TSTA Code of Ethics

All active members of the association shall subscribe to the following code of ethics. We possess the greatest faith in the future of the seed industry. We recognize seeds as a fundamental part of the agricultural success of our country. We pledge our earnest cooperation and sincere effort to protect the interests of the public, our industry and our association members through honest and upright business practices; our sincere effort to breed, grow, buy, and sell quality seeds, and to conduct ourselves in a business manner where just compensation for ourselves and our fellow seedsmen can flourish. We believe in the Texas Seed Trade Association, subscribe to the principles for which it stands, and agree to its Rules, Constitution, and Bylaws.

Texas Seed Trade Association dues are not deductible as a charitable contribution but may be deductible as an ordinary and necessary business expense. A portion of the dues is not deductible and an ordinary and necessary business expense because TSTA actively engages in state and federal lobbying. The non-deductible portion of dues for the past year is 7%.
